Newsletter No 27: 26 July 2020
17th Sunday of Ordinary Time Year A

Sacred Heart Community Kaikoura

This Sunday, we congratulate these young people who will receive the Sacrament of Confirmation in Kaikoura.

- Jono Ruawai
- Karla Milligan
- Samantha Foy
- Jack Keeble
- Jack Laugesen

They will receive the special outpouring of the Holy Spirit to complete their Baptism so they are fully part of the Body of Christ the Church. We are very grateful to Sr. Maureen Connor and Principal Ms Judith Ford for preparing the children for this day. We are also very grateful to the parents of the children and their sponsors for giving their support and encouragement to the candidates.

This year Cardinal John Dew has delegated the Parish Priests to give the Sacrament to the young people, as he has responsibility for two Dioceses. So Father Pat will be giving them the Sacrament during Mass on Sunday. Let us join in prayer for these young people that they will truly value the gifts of the Holy Spirit they will receive today, and that their families are truly blessed by God.

Today young people also in Picton (Sounds Stewardship Area) and Blenheim (Wairua Stewardship Area) will be beginning their Sacramental Preparation. Let us pray for the children involved as they prepare for their First Reconciliation and Holy Communion.

Fr. Pat McIndoe CP

Layers of Wisdom

There are so many different depths and dynamics of wisdom in the world. Here is a humorous example from a cartoon in the New Yorker magazine, published years ago but for some reason etched in my mind. Actually these are words of everyday common sense.

A terribly decrepit old man is sitting on the front porch when a very beautiful woman walks by on the sidewalk. His mouth is hanging open. Of course there was an old flea-bitten dog at the man's feet, since George Booth was the cartoonist.

His equally haggard wife is at the door with the screen pushed open just far enough to take in the scene.

"Well whistle, you damn fool!" she says.

In the Gospel, Jesus also uses common sense wisdom. If you went out into a field, he says, and saw a suspicious mound of earth and happened to dig it up and found there a hidden treasure, as much gold as you could ever want, would you immediately run out and tell everyone about it?

No, no, no. This is just the opposite of "Well whistle, you fool!" You would keep such a treasure a complete, deep, dark, fail-safe secret and you would re-bury the treasure, disguising it so no one could know that anything was there. You would go sell your goods and buy the field. Then the treasure would be yours and you could tell everyone. "Look what I happened to find on my new property!"

It makes sense.

If you agree, then here is a question for you. Wouldn't you do as much for the kingdom of heaven? This is what Jesus asks. Well, hmmm. Maybe that is worth some consideration.

As we might remember, King Solomon was noted far and wide for his wise decisions (First Reading). It is said that the Queen of Sheba travelled to him to get advice. How did he get so wise? Did he just inherit it from his father, David? No, he prayed touchingly to God for a certain kind of wisdom. He did not ask how to increase his fortune or to be well-known or to have power. He asked God for an understanding heart. He would use it to rule God's people well. God was moved by this request and gave Solomon great practical wisdom so he could be on the side of the regular folks. How many leaders today even listen to the people, let alone listen with understanding?

Perhaps the deepest wisdom this Sunday is in the Second Reading. You or I have undoubtedly quoted its words, not remembering where they came from: "All things work for the good for those who love God." The older I get, the more true this seems. Even when darkness and loss become our daily bread, still the love of God labours incessantly to bring out larger love, larger forgiveness, more acceptance of life, and love even within pain. This is food we all need every day.

Sunday, if we find a way of attending Mass, or even if not, we can pay attention to such a variety of wisdom. The important thing is not to just sit there and gape. Do what every other human being in the world would do if they were given a glimpse into the kingdom.

What is it?

"Whistle, you fool"?

Not really. Maybe just listen with an understanding heart.

John Foley, SJ

The kingdom is here, it returns, it struggles to flourish anew. Christ's resurrection everywhere calls forth seeds of that new world; even if they are cut back, they grow again, for the resurrection is already secretly woven into the fabric of this history.

God listens to everybody-sinner, saint, victim, killer-Pope says

By Carol Glatz Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Everyone lives a life that is often inconsistent or a “contradiction” because people can be both a sinner and a saint, a victim and a tormentor, Pope Francis said.

No matter what one’s situation is, people can put themselves back in God’s hands through prayer, he said June 24 during his weekly general audience.

“Prayer gives us nobility; it is able to protect one’s relationship with God, who is the true companion along humanity’s journey, amidst thousands of hardships in life, good or bad, but always with prayer,” he said.

The audience, livestreamed from the library of the Apostolic Palace, was the pope’s last general audience talk until Aug. 5, according to Vatican News. His Sunday Angelus address was to continue throughout July, however.

With the start of summer vacation for many, the pope said he hoped people could have a peaceful moment of rest despite the ongoing restrictions “connected to the threat of infection from the coronavirus.”

May it be a time of “enjoyment of the beauty of creation and a strengthening of ties with mankind and with God,” he said in greetings to Polish-speaking viewers and listeners.

In his main talk, the pope continued his series on prayer and reflected on the role prayer played in the life of David — a young shepherd whom God called to become king of Israel.

David learned early in life that a shepherd takes care of his flock, protects them from danger and provides for them, the pope said.

Jesus, too, is called “the good shepherd” because he offers his life for his flock, guiding them, knowing each one by name, he said.

When David was later confronted for his terrible sins, he realized he had become a “bad shepherd,” someone who was “sick with power, a poacher who kills and loots,” the pope said.

He no longer acted like a humble servant but had robbed another man of the only thing he loved when he took the man’s wife as his own.

David wanted to be a good shepherd, but sometimes he failed and sometimes he succeeded, the pope said.

“Saint and sinner, persecuted and persecutor, victim and even executioner,” David was full of contradictions — being all of these things in his life, he said.

But the one thing that stayed constant was his prayerful dialogue with God.

“David the saint, prays, David the sinner, prays,” always lifting his voice to God either in joy or deep despair, the pope said.

This is what David can teach the faithful today, he said: to always speak with God, no matter the circumstances or one’s state of being, because everyone’s life is often marked by contradiction and inconsistencies.

People should tell God about their joy, sins, sorrows and love — everything, the pope said, because God is always there, and he listens.

Prayer returns people to God “because the nobility of prayer leaves us in God’s hands,” he said.

The pope also noted the day’s feast of the birth of St. John the Baptist.

He asked that people learn from this saint, how to be courageous witnesses of the Gospel, above and beyond any individual differences, “preserving harmony and friendship that are the basis for the credibility of any proclamation of faith.”
